

Aaron Ridenour, CMHC

Clinical Director

Aaron has worked at ScenicView for over 14 years in various positions, including human service worker, case manager, educator, and therapist before supervising the clinical support unit. He enjoys working with both therapists and behavioral specialists on a daily basis to address the needs of students as they progress through the program. He works with the NATSAP organization as part of their research committee as well as organizes many of the assessments utilized as part of the ScenicView program.

He is an adjunct professor at Utah Valley University in the Passages program at the Melisa Nellesen Center for Autism where he helps autistic students improve their mental health and social skills. Aaron received his bachelor's degree in Marriage, Family, and Human Development and a master's degree in Mental Health Counseling. He loves working with the students at ScenicView as well as looking for innovative ways to improve the program. In his spare time, he enjoys writing, drawing, martial arts, and film production.
